

UPDATE ON H.R. 9340

Alaska's three votes were yes. The Senate fell three short.

MURKOWSKI YEA SULLIVAN YEA BEGICH YEA

SENATE ROLL CALL 254, SEPTEMBER 30TH

Cloture needed 60. It got 57.

"Cloture on the Motion to Proceed Rejected (57-43, 3/5 majority required)"

Three-fifths of the Senate had to agree just to take it up. The motion was then withdrawn. Lisa Murkowski and Dan Sullivan both voted yea. The House had passed it two weeks before.

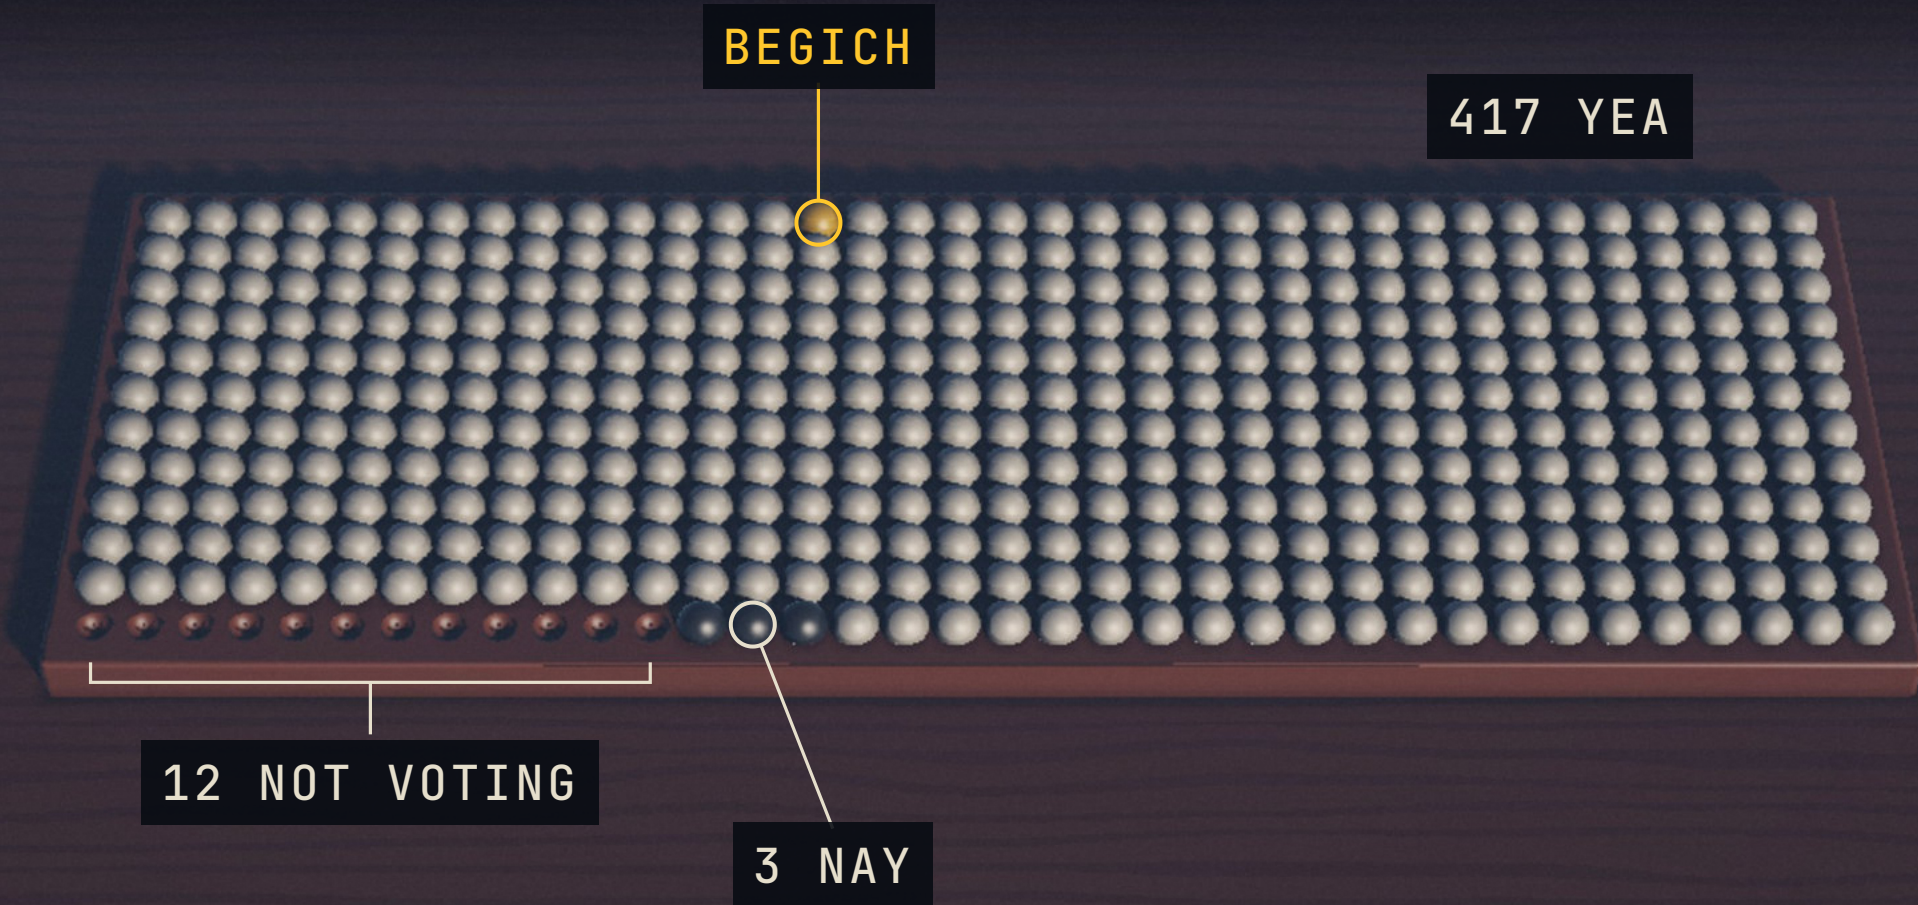

HOUSE ROLL CALL 312, SEPTEMBER 16TH

Two weeks earlier, the House passed it 417 to 3.

"On Motion to Suspend the Rules and Pass, as Amended"

Nick Begich voted yea. Republicans went 210 to 0, Democrats 206 to 3 and the one independent voted yea. Suspending the rules took two-thirds.

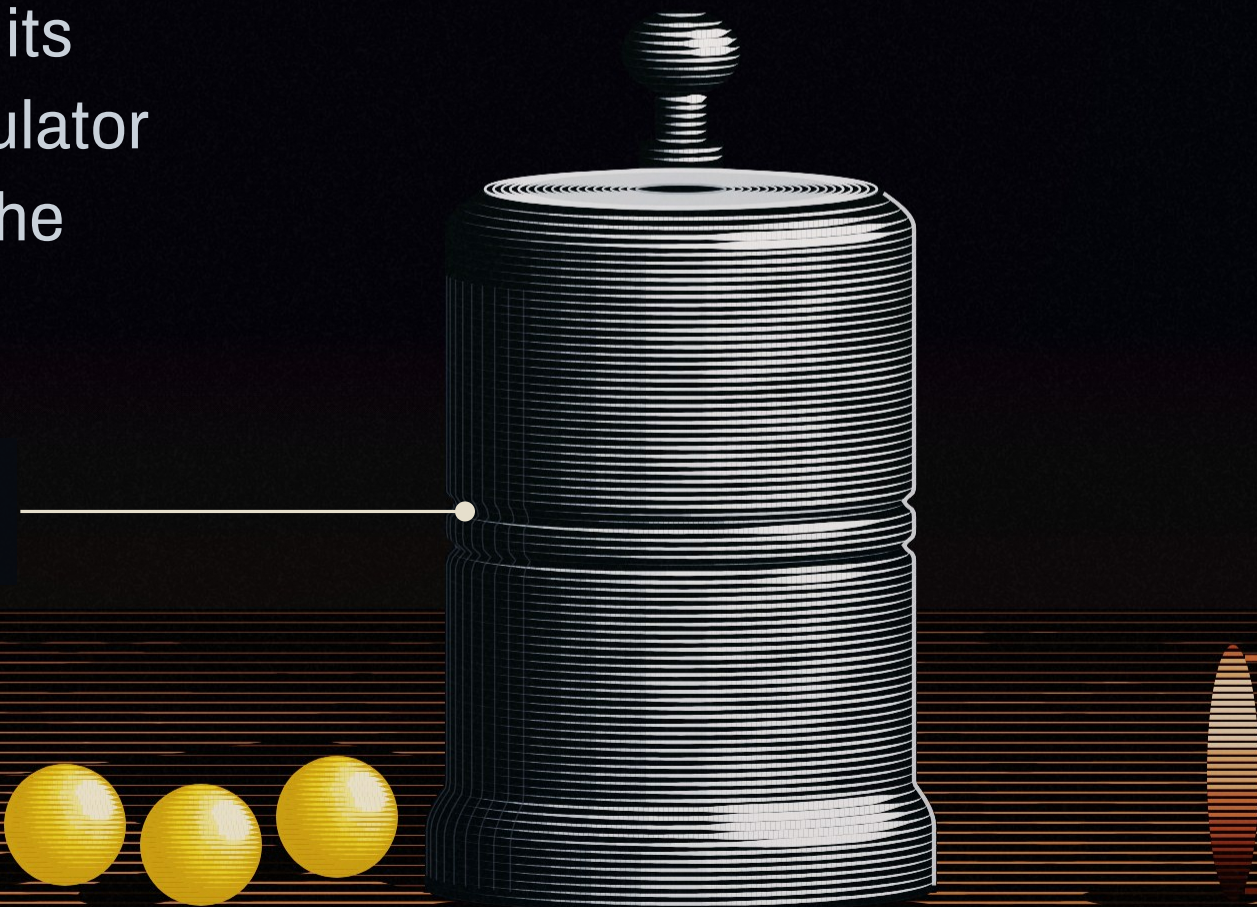

WHAT H.R. 9340 WOULD DO

A standard for computing sites of 100 MW and up.

"the full, incremental cost of any generation, transmission, or distribution upgrade necessary"

Rates would be designed to recover that cost from the customer, even if it ends its contract. Each state regulator would have to consider the standard and decide.

AT ONE SITE OR CAMPUS

AFTER THE DATE OF ENACTMENT

Both clocks start on a day that hasn't happened.

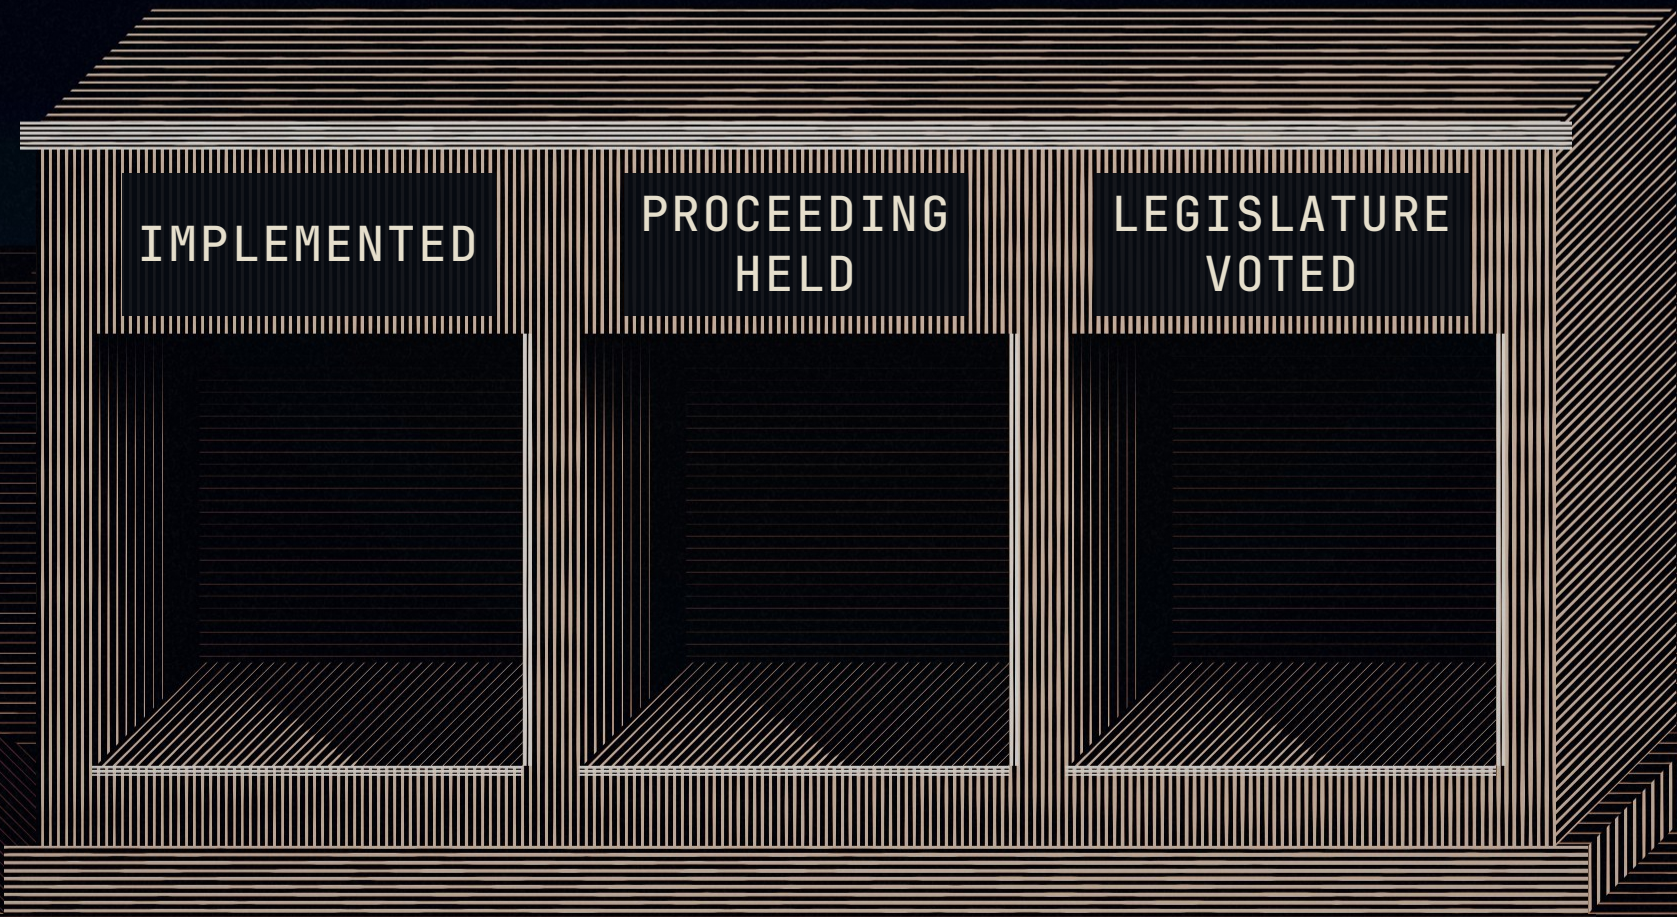

"Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this paragraph"

THE EXEMPTION

It also counts backward.

A state skips both clocks if, before enactment, it had put a comparable standard in place, held a proceeding on one, or its legislature had voted on one. Has Alaska done any of the three?

SB 250, DATA CENTER UTILITY BILL

Alaska's Senate passed SB 250, 14 to 5. A House panel held it.

"(H) Heard & Held"

It passed May 16th and was heard and held in House
Community and Regional Affairs two days later. Does one chamber's vote count as "the State legislature has voted"?
