

25 priorities.
One written twice.

The same line went to two governments.

Twenty five items, 21 state and 4 federal. Only one heading appears under both, word for word. The Committee of the Whole sponsored it and Garrett Armstrong moved it in on August 6th.

A BOROUGH OF ABOUT 97,083 PEOPLE, 2025 STATE ESTIMATE

SEVEN STANDARDS

- 1 ELECTRICAL DEMAND
- 2 WATER CONSUMPTION
- 3 WATER SHORTAGES
- 4 ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACTS
- 5 NOISE
- 6 AIR QUALITY
- 7 LAND USE POLLUTION

The hold runs until the standards exist.
The hold would stay until the state and local governments adopt standards for the seven impacts the resolution names.

AFCEC-26-R-0006 . POSTED APRIL 10TH, 2026

SAM.GOV RECORD . PER INSTALLATION SPLIT NOT PUBLISHED

TWELVE PARCELS, SHAPES NOT DRAWN

Twelve parcels were already on offer.

KUAC reported the request follows an Air Force solicitation at three Alaska installations. Air and Space Forces Magazine put it at twelve parcels and roughly 4,700 acres.

Three installations. One is in this borough.

Eielson Air Force Base is inside the Fairbanks North Star Borough. Public records place Clear Space Force Station near Anderson, in the Denali Borough. Joint Base Elmendorf-Richardson is in Anchorage. A bidder could have proposed one and skipped the others.

The window shut in spring. The vote came in August.

The federal window opened and closed before the Assembly took the item up. The land it opened is federal.

NO SHADOW CROSSES THE LINE

STATE OR MUNICIPAL

FEDERAL

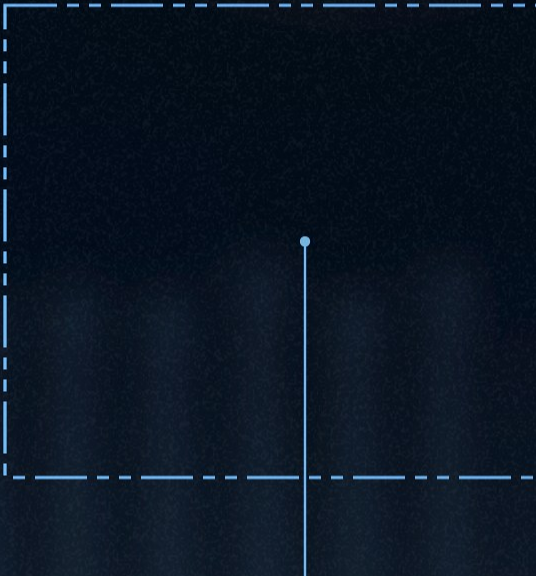

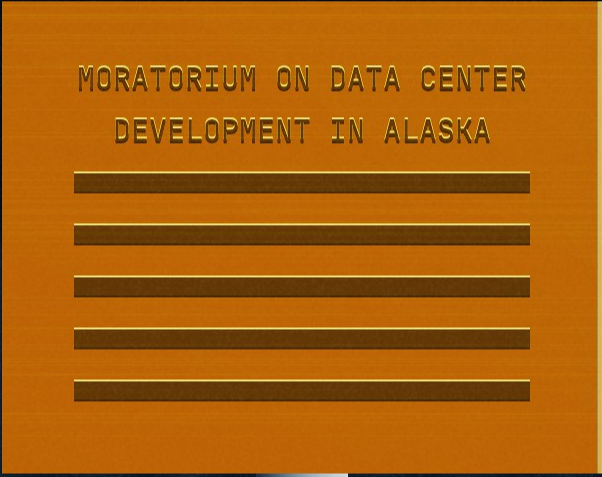

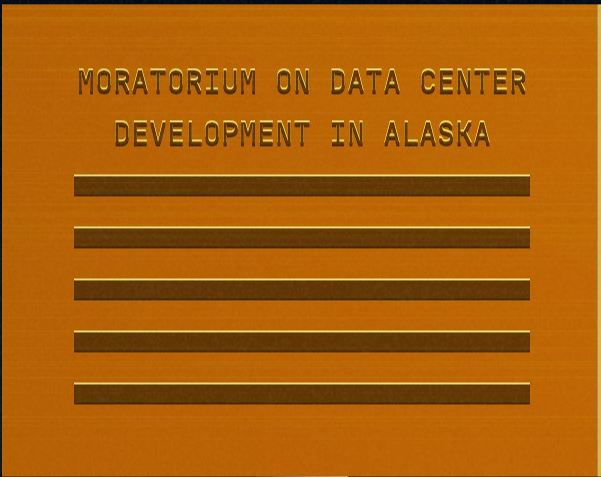

The markers stop at a property line.

The adopted text reaches new commercial data centers on state-owned or municipal lands in Alaska. The twelve parcels are on federal installations.

"We need to establish strict regulations before tech conglomerates come knocking at our door."

SARAH HOLLISTER, TO THE ASSEMBLY, PER KUAC

SAME WORDS, BOTH LISTS

INTENDED, PER KUAC

The words say state land.
The intent was wider.

Presiding Officer Scott Crass told KUAC by phone that federal land was meant to be included too. The text adopted on August 27th doesn't say that, and both lists carry the same words.

An ask is the whole power a borough has here.

Mayor Grier Hopkins said the community wants to know how data centers can best be regulated and "where, if anywhere, should we put them in our community." No standard exists yet for any of the seven.

Which of the seven should Alaska write a standard for first?
