ALASKA'S U.S. SENATE RACE, PER AN ALASKA BEACON ANALYSIS OF FEC RECORDS

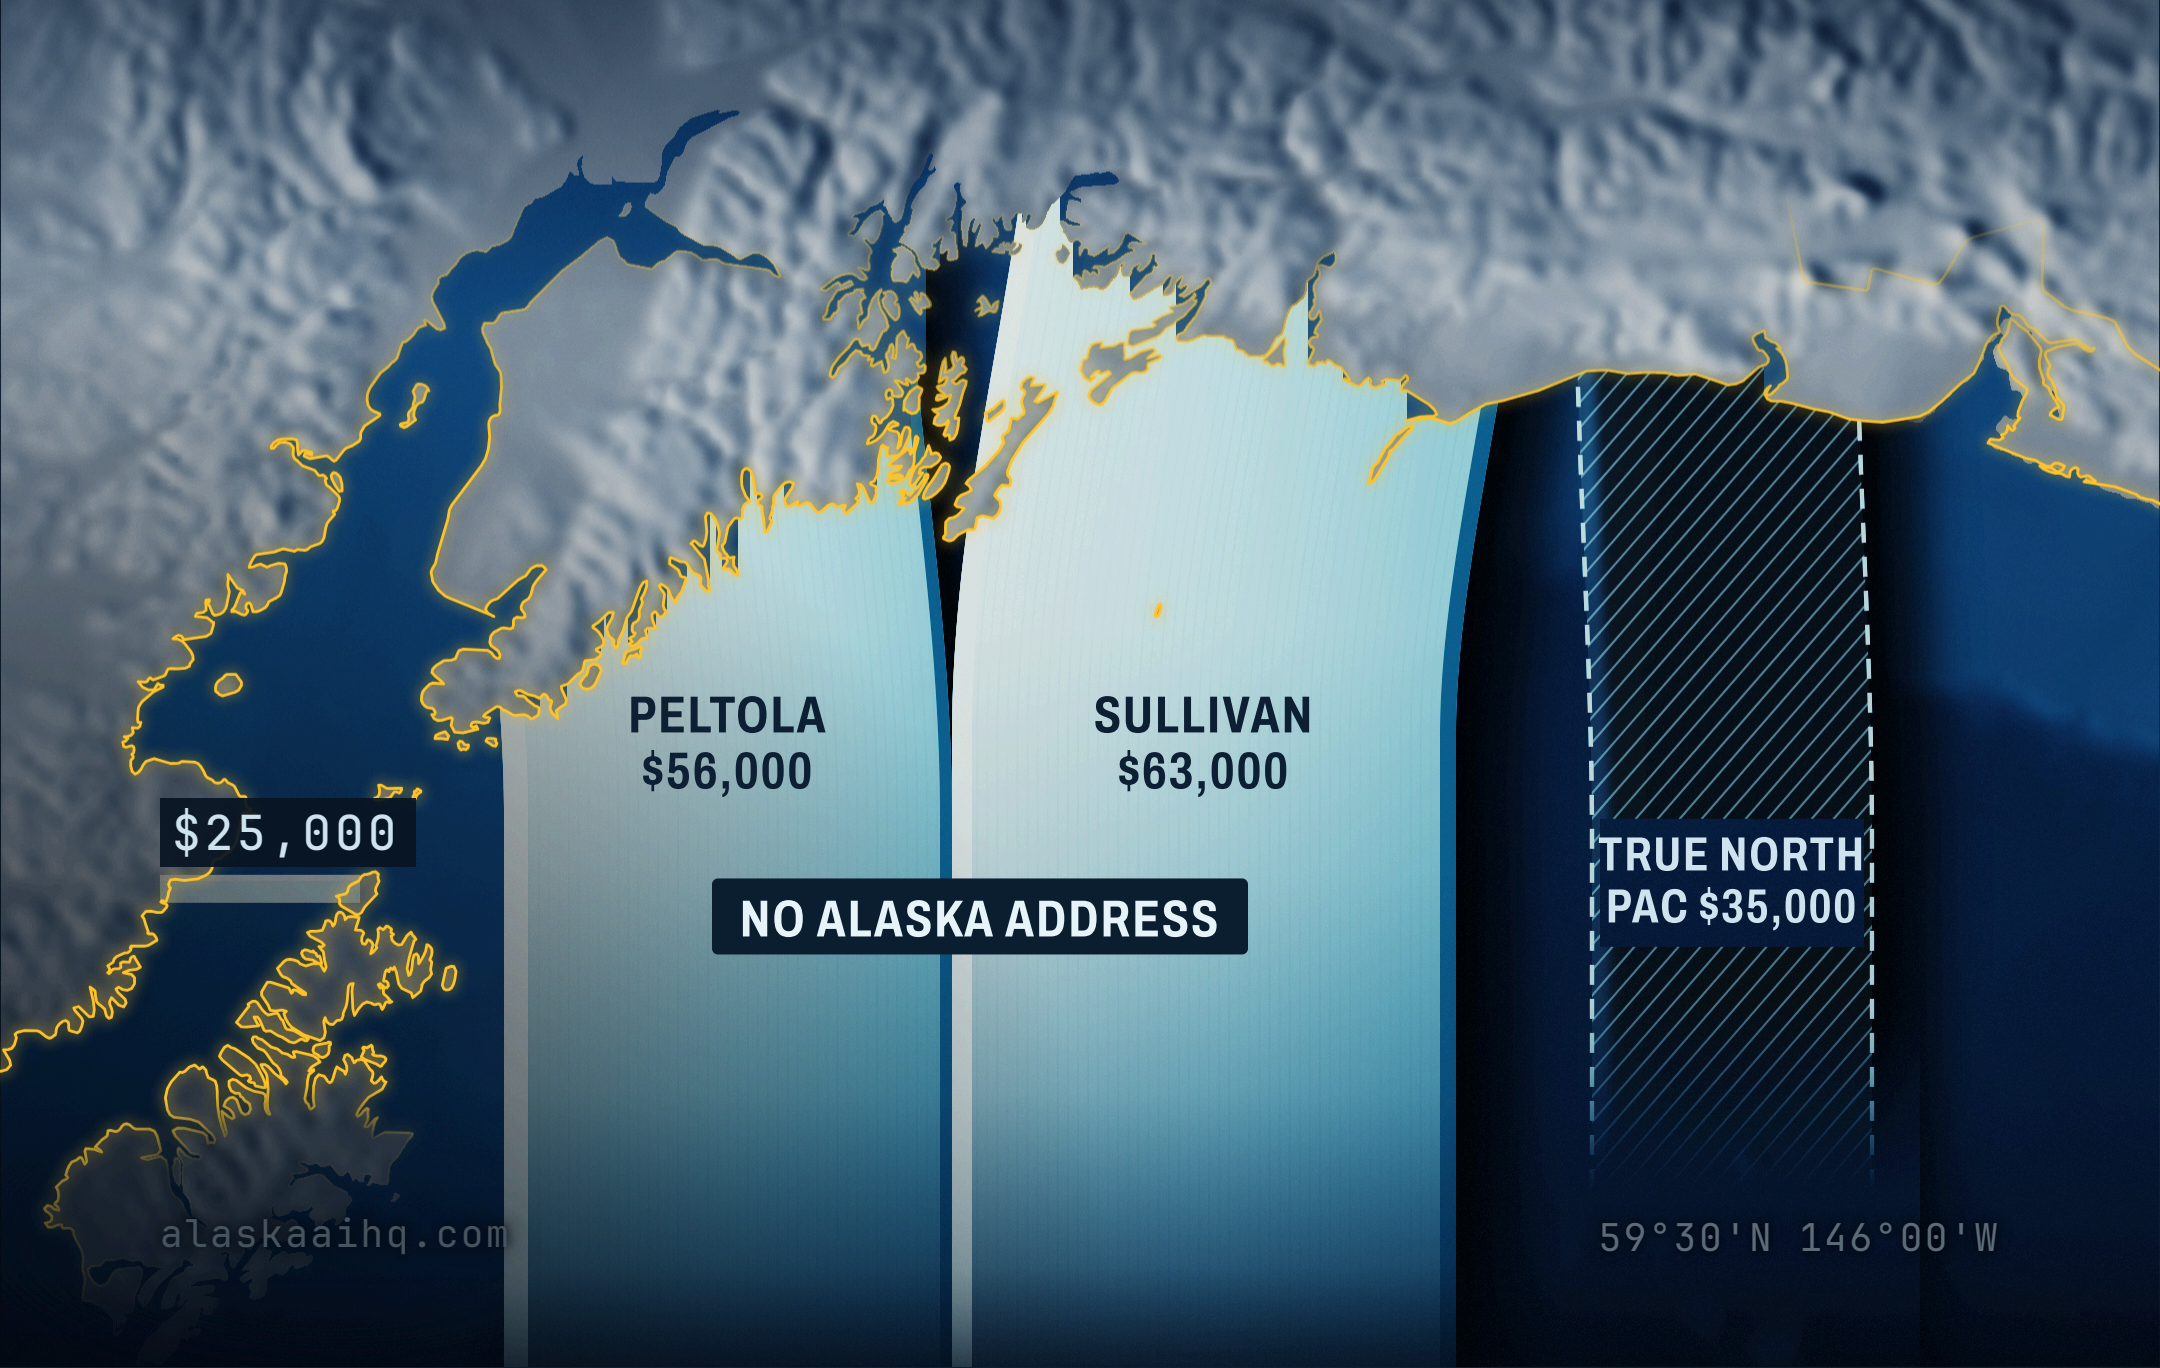

No Senate race drew more from AI-company employees. Zero Alaska addresses.

ONE SCALE FOR EVERY DOLLAR IN THIS DECK

About $119,000 from at least 19 donors.

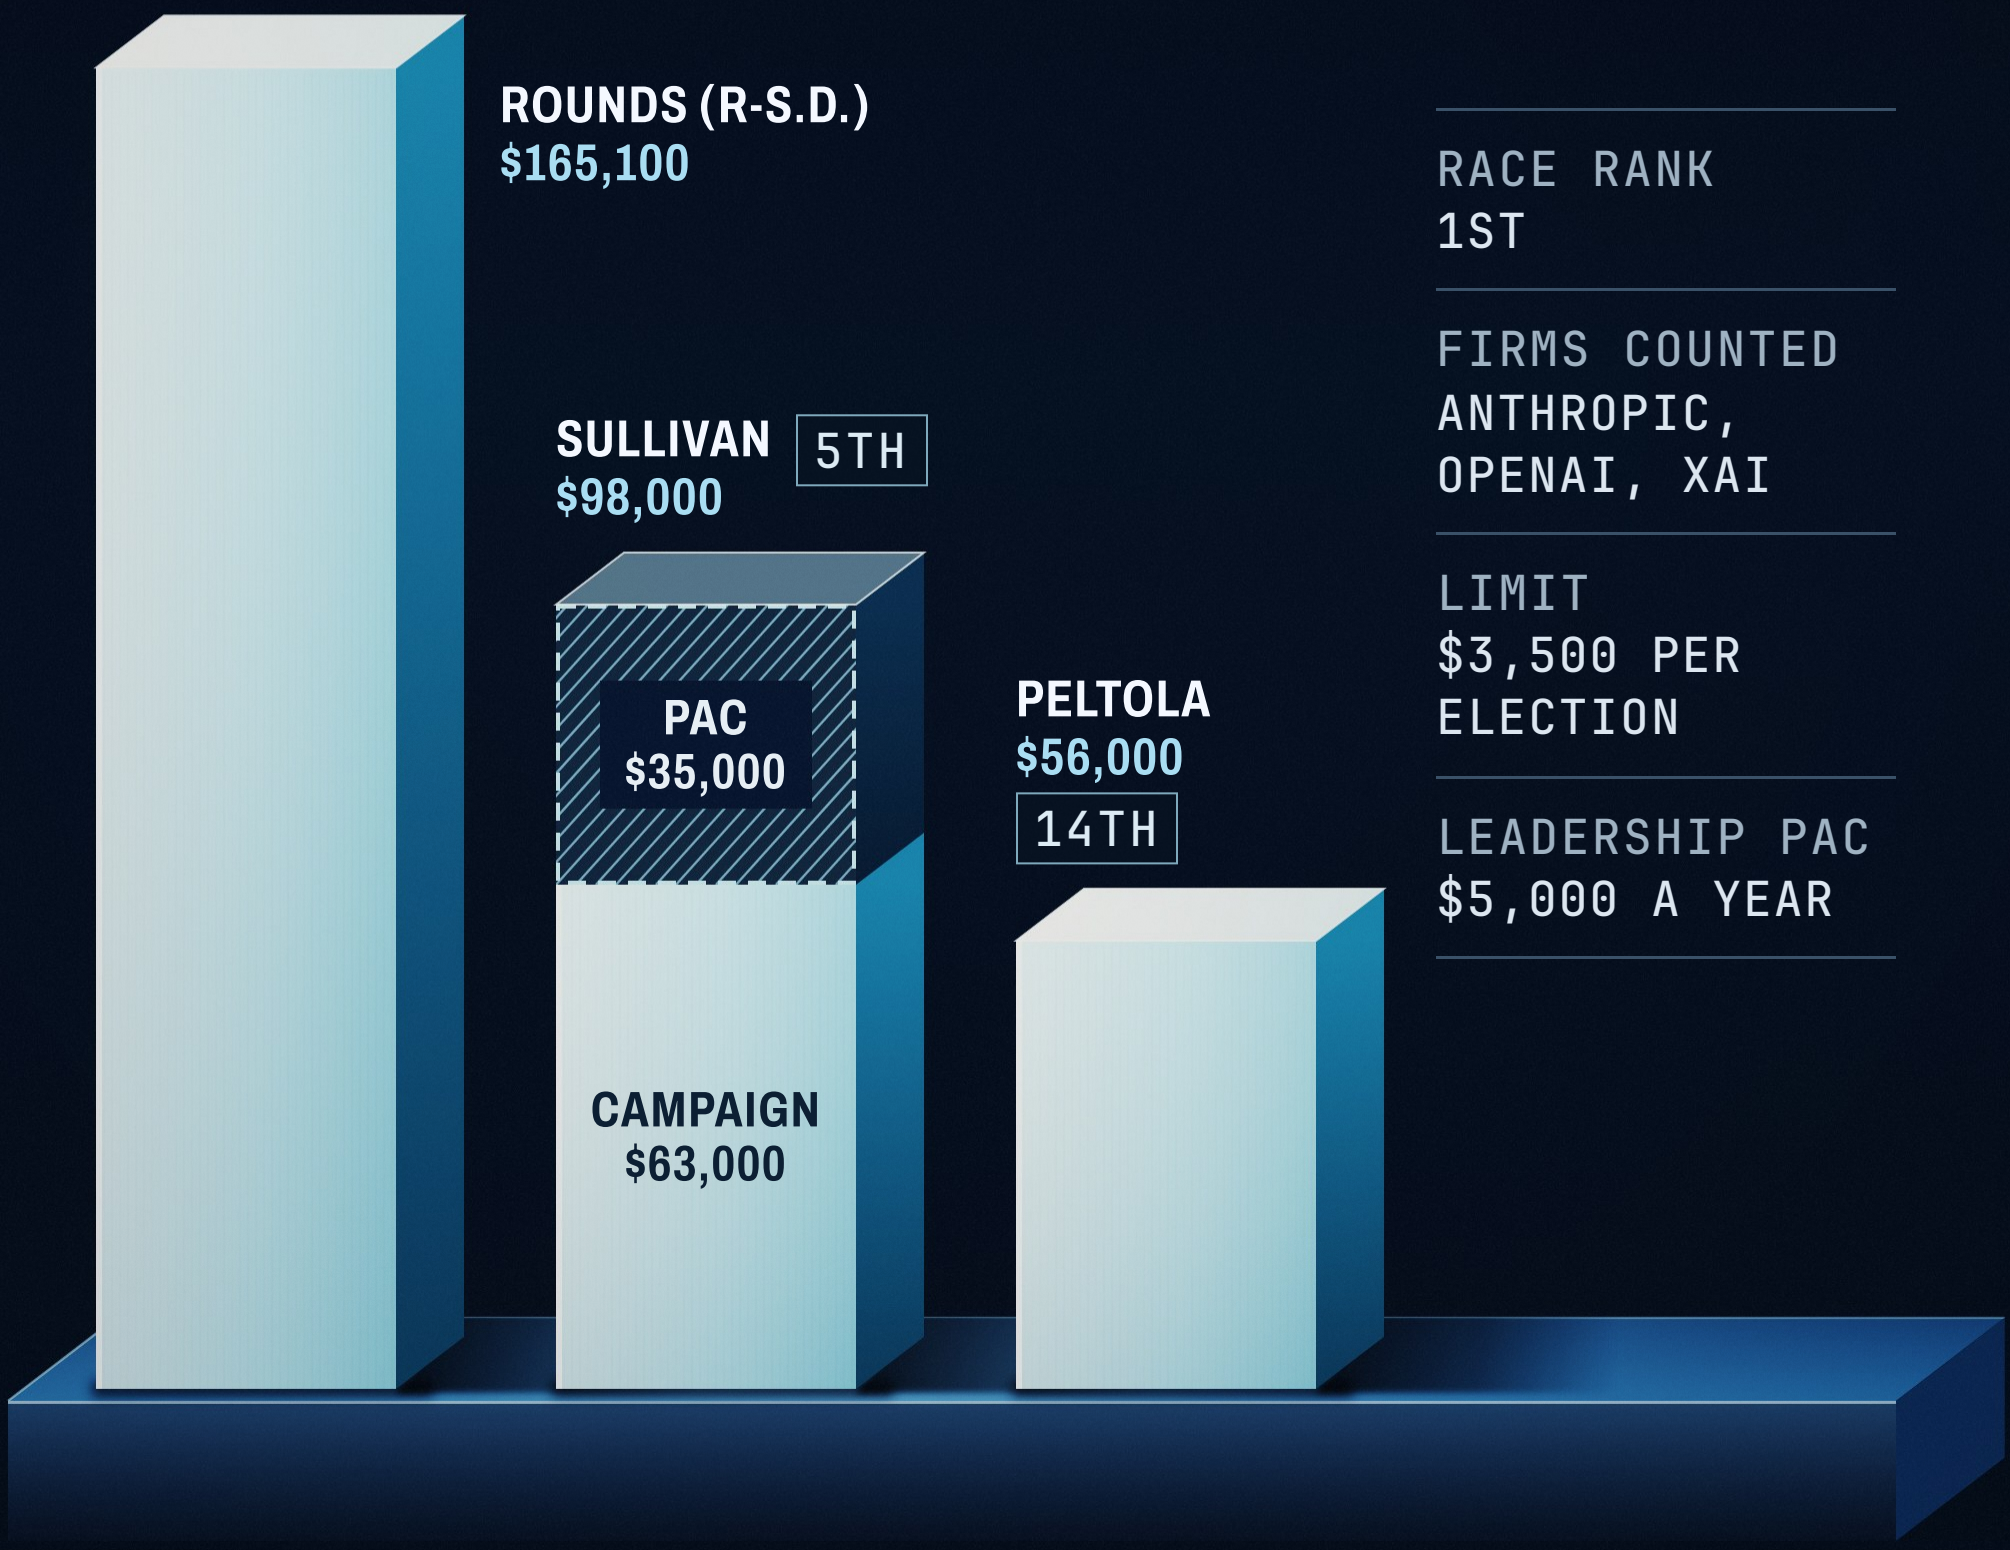

Peltola, at least $56,000, nearly all from Anthropic employees. Sullivan, about $63,000, plus $35,000 to his True North leadership PAC that the $119,000 leaves out. Figures per the Alaska Beacon.

THE TOP RACE, ON ONE SCALE

First among Senate races. Fifth and 14th among candidates.

Mike Rounds of South Dakota tops the candidates at $165,100 with PACs. Sullivan's $98,000 counts his PAC. Most donors gave close to the legal limit.

CHANGE WHO COUNTS AS TECH

Count Big Tech too, and the order flips.

Counting Anthropic, OpenAI and xAI alone, Sullivan ranks 5th and Peltola 14th. Add Big Tech employees and Peltola ranks 5th, Sullivan 16th. Close to 150 Big Tech donors gave to Peltola, four to Sullivan.

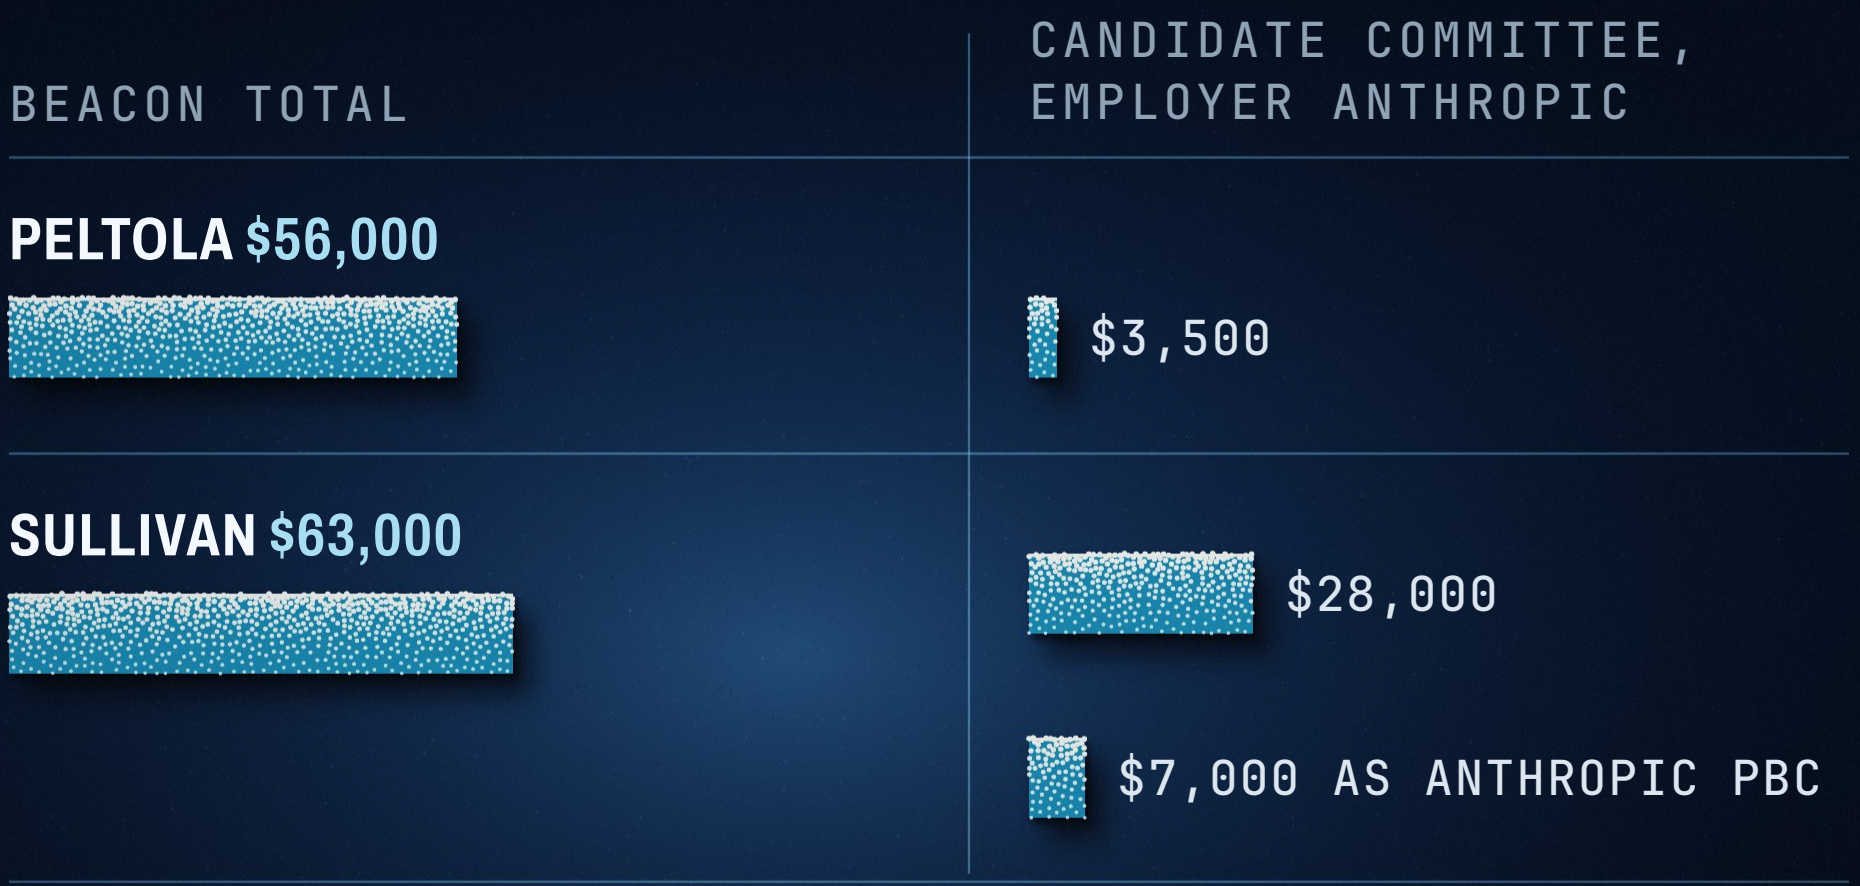

Same map, second stream. In April the Air Force offered developers land on three Alaska bases for AI data centers.

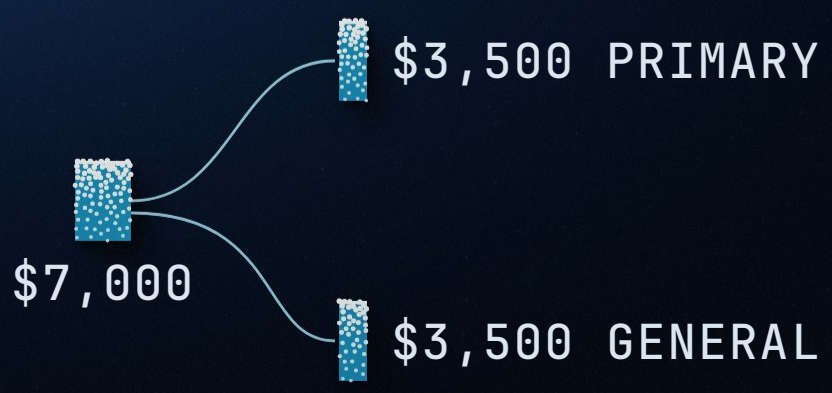

BEFORE THE LAND, THE MONEY'S ROUTE

Most of it moved through joint committees first.

More than half of Peltola's came through the Fish Family Freedom Fund, and Sullivan's mainly through One Team Senate Majority and Sullivan Victory. The Beacon traced it with an AI agent called DataTalk.

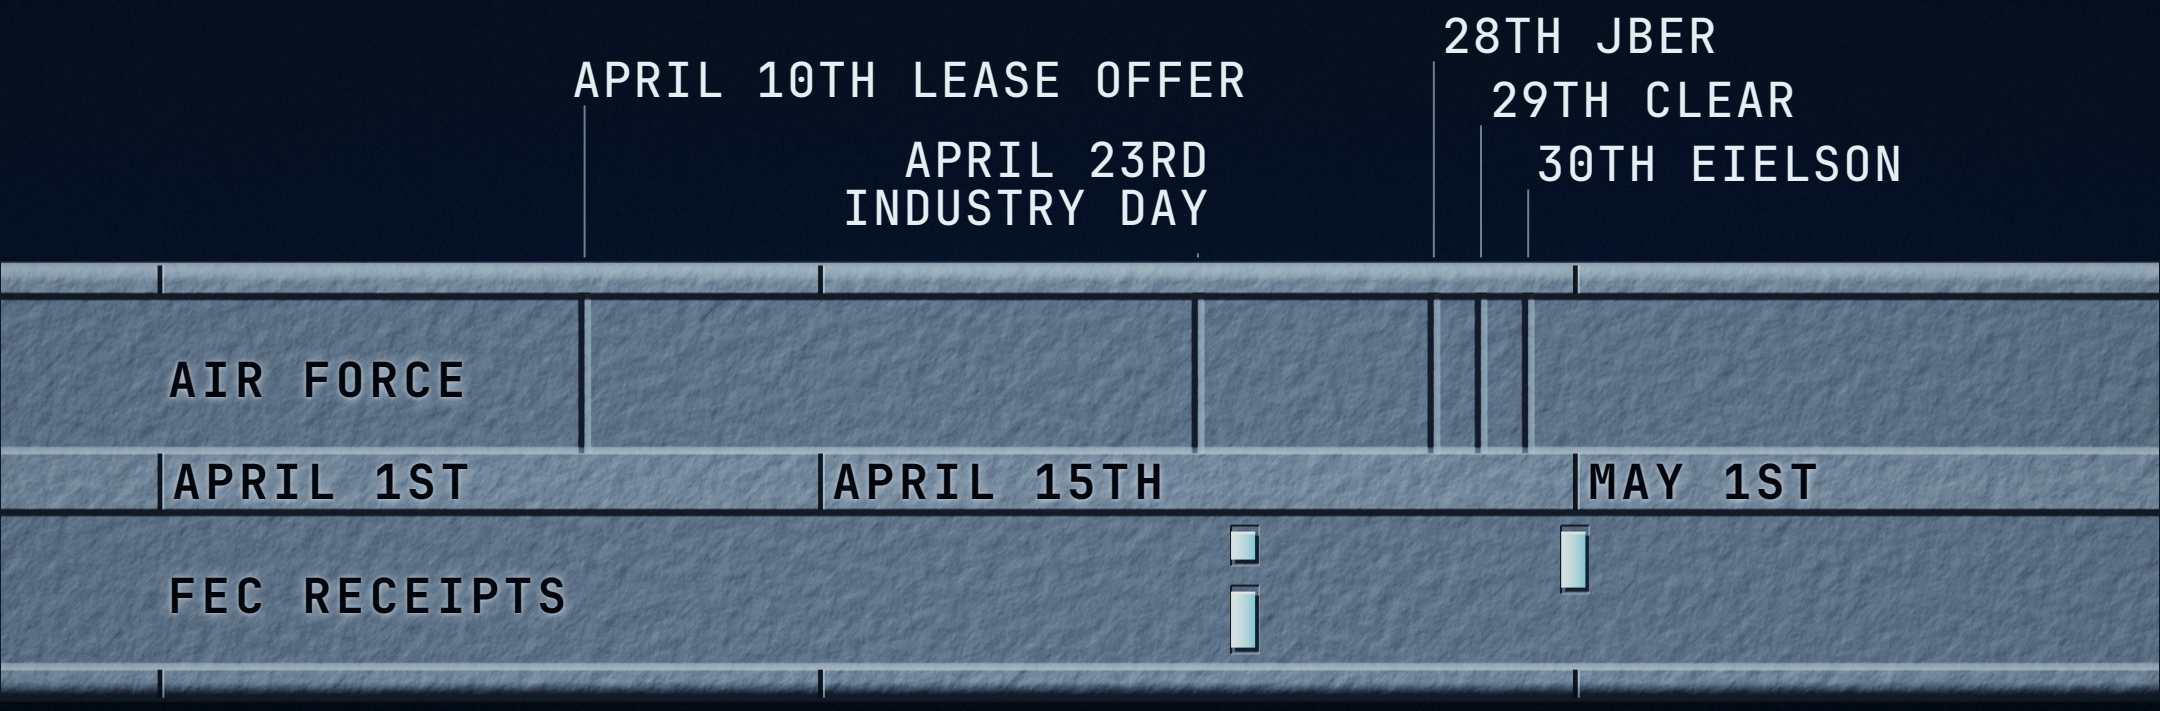

LIKELY ONE CHECK, TWO LINES. CORSELL'S $7,000 TO SULLIVAN VICTORY, THEN $3,500 + $3,500 MARKED TRANSFER MEMO ON THE CAMPAIGN'S FILING.

TWO RECORDS, ONE SPRING

Same weeks, separate records.

As the Air Force set site visits at three Alaska bases, executives of Twenty First Century Utilities and Saige Consulting appear in Sullivan's FEC filings. Employer data shouldn't be read as proof of coordinated giving, Campaign Legal Center's Brendan Fischer told the Beacon.
